THE following, from the pen of an alumnus of one of our large Western colleges, speaks well for our institution. It shows that as a place for students who wish a good, thorough education, which will be of practical benefit in after life, Middlebury College stands at the head :

Middlebury College is well known throughout the educationa world as a place of learning favorable to careful discipline and sturdy mental growth. It is called an old-fashioned New England college; but old-fashioned it is, in the sense of preserving the wise conservatism, the educational notions, which have resulted in the product of many of the most effective minds of the present day. The young men at Middlebury undergo the same courses of study and discipline as students of larger colleges; and although Middlebury College is small in numbers, it remains attractive as a place of instruction for thoughtful students.

THE 91st Commencement bids fair to be one of the most interesting in the history of the college. The exercises will begin Sunday forenoon, June 28, with the baccalaureate sermon by Pres. Brainerd at the Congregational church; in the evening Rev. C. S. Murkland, '81, of Manchester, New Hampshire, will deliver the annual address to the Y. M. C. A. The Parker and Merrill prize speaking will be on the following Tuesday evening; the speaking will be the closest and most interesting contest of recent years. In the Parkerian contest, Stanton S. Eddy will speak as a representative of the Chi Psi Fraternity, I. H LaFleur for Delta Kappa Epsilon, D. J. Hayes for the Neutrals and A. A. Sargent for Delta Upsilon. The appointments from the Sophomores for the Merrill prizes, with the rhetorical work of the class for the last year as a basis, are Edgar R. Brown, James B. Donoway, Gilbert E. Cady, George L. Hasseltine, Chas. E. Hesselgrave, Henry G. Megathlin, Paul G. Ross and Frank B. Seeley.

Tuesday will be the day for the alumni; the annual address will be given at 10 o'clock in the Congregational church by Hon. Geo. W. Ellis, '68, of New York City, who will be followed by Hon. J. C. Miller, '82, of Boston, Mass., the poet for the occasion.

The graduation exercises of the class of '91 will be at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and in the evening the annual concert and ball will occur at the town hall. The musical programme will be the best that Middlebury has known for years. The Howard Opera House Orchestra will be in attendance during the graduation exercises and the singing of the famous contralto, Miss Mary Howe, and the cello-playing of Georgie Pray of Boston will be the special features of the concert. The Commencement ball and President's reception will be in order after the concert. Let every alumnus make arrangements to attend the '91st Commencement of Middlebury College.

AN exercise has been recently entered upon by one class in one department which is of much practical benefit to those taking part in it; it is occasional discussions and debates by the students of matters of interest directly or indirectly concerning the study being pursued by the class, with the in structor as critic and director. This practice accustoms the student to the forms of debate and aids him to a forcible and lucid expression of his ideas; it spurs him on to original research and work and gives to him a general knowledge of history, topics of the time and matters of general interest. This custom might be employed in other departments to the interest and advantage of the students.

ONE gratifying feature that we have noted in our work as editors thus far is the liberal manner in which many of the students are contributing matter for the columns of the UNDERGRADUATE. But there is a fault in nearly all of the work which ought to be corrected; the items and articles seem to be written with an eye for the quantity of matter rather than for the quality. In some cases there is a visible effort to see how much one can write up about a matter, instead of seeing how clearly and concisely it can be put. Quantity of matter alone is not a true basis of competition, nor can it be so considered by the present board. Let copy continue to come in, but let each contributor do his work in his best possible manner. The college paper is not a fitting field for the student to display his rhetoric or verbosity.

THE playing of our ball-nine surpasses our most ardent expectations. We had anticipated defeat at the hands of the Norwich team, as their nine is almost entirely professionals, but we were agreeably surprised at the results. We fail to see how any college can take pleasure in the success of a nine which is not composed of students of the college. Whatever victories we gain will not be gained by a hired nine, as some of our sister colleges obtain theirs, but by the students of this institution.

IN another column we print the constitution and by-laws of the Athletic Association as amended last term. There have been several changes, and all, we think, are improvements. The time for election of officers has been changed from the last of the winter term to the last of the spring term. The best change of all, and one which we have advocated for some time, is the change of time for holding Field-day. Hereafter we will have our Field-day meeting as other colleges do, in the spring term.

MORE light is needed in the halls and entrances of Starr and Painter Halls than there has been during evenings of the Spring term thus far. It is not pleasant for one to grope his way about these buildings in the dark, even though he knows the way quite well and that the stars are twinkling without. There is a person whose duty it is to see that certain portions of the college buildings are lighted until 10 o'clock. If he finds, through absence or general aversion to this kind of work, that he is unable to perform the duties attendant upon this position, it is wholly fitting and proper that he resign and allow the fault attendant with the non-performance of these duties to fall upon the shoulders of some other person.

THE CLASS OF 1862—MEMORABILIA.

BY RICHARD S. HOLMES, D. D.

IT entered in September, 1858. The writer did not. He made his advent to Middlebury, March 17, 1859, young, untoward and green. He found thirty six or thirty-seven men (sic?), to whom his small unity was to be added; enrolled as member of the class of 1862, making the largest class at that time in the college, and larger if memory serves rightly than any class which has since been connected with the institution. The old "East College," an unsightly ruin in those days, but glorious with memories, was the dormitory home which received me. A few Juniors roomed there and a few "Sophs," but the superabundant population was Freshmen. I remember well the first college song I ever heard when at night of a cold March day a squad of "jolly old Chi Psi's" sat on the rickety old stoop facing westward and sang a song long since dead, "Take a rake with iron teeth." If these lines come before "Dutchman Fitch" or "Old Eli" or "Old Bob Ridley Oh" and "Parky D." they will recall scene and song, and singers. Pettengill roomed here and Beman and Hobbs and Sweet. I wonder if George has forgotten how he helped one Freshman oil his shoes? "Little Scott" lived in "Old East", he who left us small and impecunious, and came back in after years, out of the war, with the marks of his devotion to his country fixed in him forever; but "Little Scott" no longer, a giant from the "far Arkansaw" back after the years to take his interrupted degree. Wilder lived here too, poor fellow, who never saw Earth's sun rise on his Junior year; and Conant, delver in lexiconic mysteries, but who could not make the tutor's fingers write magic "12" after his recitations; and Robinson, semper idem as the years have proved; and, I cannot recall the rest. The swift men of the time roomed in "Old East College," and there was need. The days of five o'clock morning prayer had not passed—five o'clock in summer and half-past five o'clock in winter. Am I right? It was an early, unmerciful hour, whatever its name. There was the ding of the first bell away on the hill; there was the last snooze till the first tap of the second bell; then bound, jerk, rip, tear, and away on the run for morning prayers, with the books for the after recitation under one arm, and the fingers fastening the odd skipped buttons. These were the days of club boarding houses; and I, a Freshman, slender pursed, was introduced to the mystery of board at $1.38 per week, or if the steward was extravagant perhaps $1.40. I never knew what the boys thought of me, till last summer a classmate told me; "I was the greenest looking and acting specimen that ever came into a college class." How I dreaded "hazing". It never came. My feeble, "round-abouted," under-sized greenness, I know now, saved me. I shall never forget the first experience in recitation room. Andrews & Stoddard and Kühner held sway. When first I heard Ed. Pettengill recite in Latin, and get off his answer to some Latin question with his "According to 247, 5, Rem. 4. Exception (c.) paragraph 2 under Exception," I was frightened and wished that I had not come, for I knew nothing whatever of such things. When the tutor first asked me, when, after a day or two, I was upon my feet, "Why some verb was in the optative?" I told him "because the author thought best to use that word." The class roared; I thought that was mean, but had no remedy. I don't wonder that "Prexy" asked me once how I ever came to be admitted to college. Freshman year vanished finally. We were Sophomores, our number was smaller—Allen had left us, and Lee and Conant and others, I cannot tell all. Conkey had gone to immortality. Wilder never rejoined us. But still we were large and strong relative to the other classes. We did no hazing. At a famous class meeting held in a Weybridge farm house, whither we had gone sugaring in the spring before, we passed the resolution, which we kept, that we would not haze. The Juniors who had been "Sophs" tried to make ill blood between us and '63 by blowing up our stove pipe with powder and charging it to the "Freshies," but it went "agley." We passed a quiet year, not eventful and without ripple, except when the Juniors found the press where we had put the copy for our mockery of the Junior Exhibition, and printed and set afloat a whole edition days before the occasion. "Hoist with our own petard" we were indeed. But one thing signalizes the year, and belongs to the class of '62; that was the successful petition from Junior, Sophomore and Freshman classes asking a change in the hour of morning prayers. The corporation granted it, and from that time on Sweet's lie record on his monitor-bill was less ingenious, while his lies in bed were undisturbed. With Junior year we lost more of our number. The fall of '60 elected Lincoln to the Presidency, and then came war mutterings. Before that Junior year was over the war was on, and one and another from every class changed cap and gown for belt and musket. Sixty-two was not behind. Only seven came back in the fall of '61 and that number we carried through to the August day that saw us graduate. How well I remember that day. Walker said the last words to us, standing, with uniform on, on the old church platform, the first and last valedictorian to wear as he spoke "the blue" of Uncle Sam's volunteers. And thus we separated. I can hardly realize that it is 29 years ago since we ate our last class supper before separation. But it is. There is gray hair enough about this writer's forehead to prove it without court or jury. Seven of the seventeen went into the army. Poor Converse; poor Eaton. They died as die the brave. That awful Petersburgh which brought sorrow to so many homes took them from our living roster, to add their names to the long roll of America's immortals. But death has been kind to us. Besides them only Harris has gone. From Williams College, which he had entered in the fall of 1858, he came to us during our last Freshman term. His life was largely passed in the West and he has left a memory that is fragrant through all the region where he moved. I have crossed his path often in my journeys and I know whereof I write.

'62 has furnished six lawyers, two physicians, two editors and four ministers to American professional life. Of the lawyers one is widely distinguished and justly so. The UNDERGRADUATE need no word from this pen to enroll Aldace F. Walker where he rightly belongs among Middlebury's sons. Two words will tell the story of his relation to all with whom he has come into competition since the days when Knapp and L. A. Scott and he as Freshmen tried their "twitching" power on the mystic number "12." Those words, then as now, are "facile princeps". '62 rejoices in his power. Of the ministers, Harris has done his work and gone to his reward. Robinson and Gerry remain and your writer. How well I remember Gerry, his spare figure and wiry constitution made him our phenomenon. I can see him now with long line and fish-hook hanging out of the fourth-story corner window of old Painter Hall angling, with corn for bait, for Myrick's turkeys that were wont to feed beneath his windows. I have wondered if he ever was as patient as he has tried to fish for men. He had no success in those days in trying to raise turkeys. I wonder if he does better at that business now that he is a farmer. For that is what the catalogue says of him. Two ministers of our number have the "D" duplex from Alma Mater. One of them I know wears it worthily. It is something in these changing days, when the demand is so frequent for the novel or the striking, to read of Robinson, that for twenty years he has been the strong tower of Congregationalism in Presbyterian New York. But I cannot refrain from saying he seems to have a stronger grip on Homer geographically and ecclesiastically in 1891 than he had on Homer classically in 1858 and 1859. He will stand scanning in the Homer of this day; but he could not scan standing in the Homer of that day.

What of the physicians Gale and Smith? I have no word authentic. But this I am sure one of them will still say:

"The best of all the pill-box crew,
Since ever time began,
Are Dr. Diet and Dr. Quiet,
And Dr. Merryman.

"There's Dr. Diet, he scans my tongue,
And gravely looks at me;
And he says, my friend, your liver's sprung,
We must make your food agree.

"And Dr. Quiet, he feels my pulse,
Then sadly shakes his head;
And he says late hours will never do,
We must have you off to bed.

"But Dr. Merryman for me—
He beats them both by half;
From the doleful dumps he sets me free
With his rollicking, hearty laugh."

Knapp is a Governor. Simonds is a man for Petroleum V. Nasby to ever envy, as he can still write "P. M., which is postmaster." Scott, gentle and genial and withal manly, I have never seen since 1862, and in all the years have never heard a word of him or his.

Our ungraduated men have not been idle or unheard of in this busy life of ours. Some of them have attained great eminence in the professions, and all have been useful. The class as a whole is another of the living witnesses to the power of the small college to make out of poor boys men who shall contribute their due part to the influences that go to mould and shape the destiny of our country.

1892 completes the thirty years since we were ushered with dignity by that master of dignity, Benjamin Labaree, into the presence of the age we were to serve. If this hasty sketch comes under the eye of any SIXTY TWO-ER let him, like Captain Cuttle, "make a note," and in accord with it let him be found on the first Tuesday of July, 1892, at 9 o'clock in the morning in the hall-way just back of the office of the Addison House, and the writer will be there to shake his hand.

'36. Rev. Calvin Selden's

DEATH occurred March 22, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nellie M. Ferry, in Wheaton' Ill. He was born in Springfield, Vt., Aug. 23, 1810, graduated from Middlebury College in the class of 1836, and, after graduating from Andover Seminary, labored in Vermont until 1857. He then removed to Illinois and became pastor, successively, at Rockton, Buda, Paw Paw, Milburn, Chesterfield and Woodburn. He laid good foundations in these home missionary fields, and was specially successful in awakening an interest in all true reforms and Christian enterprises. He married Mary Seymour of Middlebury, and her death, two years ago, was a great blow to him. Four children and a large circle of friends mourn his death. Only nine out of a class of twenty-eight survive him.

'23. Thomas J. Conant, D. D.

BY the death of Rev. T. J. Conant, at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12, Middlebury loses one of the most noted and conspicuous of her alumni. Mr.

Conant had been feeble from the infirmities of old age for some time, but not seriously ill until recently, when he had a severe attack of congestion of the lungs.

Thomas Jefferson Conant was the son of John Conant, a prominent manufacturer in the early part of the century at Brandon, Vt. His son, showing a special aptitude for reading and study, was thought worthy of a college education and sent to Middlebury at the age of 17; there he showed remarkable abilities as an original researcher and scholar and was graduated with the class of 1823. During his course he paid special attention to the study of Hebrew and German, and upon graduation he continued his study in these branches for a time and taught some besides. In 1828 he obtained a position as tutor in Columbia College, which he held for two years, and then left to become professor of Greek, Latin and German at Waterville College, now Colby University, Me. This position he kept until 1835, when he became professor of Biblical Literature and Criticism at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Hamilton, N. Y. Dr. Conant continued as instructor in this department until 1850, when he resigned to travel in foreign lands that he might there make personal investigation and research among the manuscripts of the ancient languages. Upon his return in 1852 he was procured by the trustees of the University of Rochester to fill the chair of Hebrew and Biblical Exegesis in that institution. He continued his instructions at Rochester until 1857, when he left to move to Brooklyn that he might there devote himself exclusively to the service of the American Bible Union. His labors in connection with this association have been largely in translation and revision of biblical manuscripts. His most important publications in this line are "The Book of Joel," revised version with notes, in 1858; "The Gospel of Mathew," 1860; "The Book of Genesis," 1868; "The Book of Psalms," in 1868, a publication which has also appeared in Lange's Commentary, and "The Book of Proverbs" in 1871. In 1884 he published a translation and notes of the Book of Joshua, Judges, Ruth I and II and II Kings. His earliest publication is a translation, made in 1848, of the Hebrew Grammar of Gesienius, which has since become a standard text book and authority in England and America. The most important work, however, was done by Dr. Conant when he became, in 1873, a member of the American Committee co-operating with the Old Testament Company of the Convocation of Canterbury, England, in the revision of the authorized version of the Bible. He was regarded as one of the ablest men in this convocation and he took an important part in the entire work. Dr. Conant, though he never regularly filled any pulpit, was a clergyman of the Baptist denomination; as a teacher and propounder of the Bible and as a translator of Greek and Hebrew manuscripts he has gained a reputation exceeded by no other American.

When 28 years of age Dr. Conant married Miss Hannah Chapin, daughter of a clergyman, at Danvers, Mass., a lady of taste and ability. Her death occurred in 1865. Seven children, the offspring of this marriage, and their descendants mourn the death of this venerable theologian and scholar.

'70. Dr. Sidney Hiram Foster,

WHO has made Malone his home for a few months past, acting as the agent here of the Home Library Association, committed suicide on Tuesday, May 19, by taking morphine.

Dr. Foster was about 48 years of age and was highly educated, and before he became a victim of the morphine habit was a popular and successful practitioner. His home was at Moira, and about fifteen years ago was one of the coroners of the county. He was also at one time a candidate for the Republican nomination for School Commissioner of the second district of Franklin county.

Eight or ten years ago he became addicted to the use of morphine, and finding his practice falling off because of it, removed to California. Returning to Moira after a time, his condition became worse and four years ago he attempted to commit suicide. He was then sent to the insane asylum at Utica, from which he was discharged a year ago so greatly improved that his friends hoped that he would be his old self again. But he once more fell into the habit of using morphine, and the end is that his life has gone out as stated. His remains were taken to Moira for interment, where his wife is buried and where a sister, Mrs. J. O. Slater, resides.

The class of '81 will hold a reunion commencement week. The following are the members: James Levi Barton, Harry Belknap Boice, Milton A. Brooks, James Clarence Harvey, John David Jones. Frank Spencer June, Charles Sumner Murkland and Edward Mason Parker. Addresses can be obtained of Milton A. Brooks, Middlebury, Vt.

MIDDLEBURY vs. NORWICH UNIVERSITY.

The ball nine played their first game of importance for this season with the Norwich University nine at Northfield, Friday, May 22. The chief feature of the game was the continual and remarkable perversion of the discriminating faculties of umpire Paine; a perversion which always took such a turn as to favor the Norwich nine. He roasted our boys badly, but not sufficiently to take the game from them. The game was close and interesting throughout; the playing of Bryant, Sturtevant and Wasson was especially good. The score resulted in a victory for Middlebury by a score of 17 to 16.

FIELD-DAY EXERCISES.

The sixth annual Field-day exercises of the Athletic Association, postponed from Oct. 10, 1890, took place on the fair grounds June 5. The Standing Broad Jump, Mile Run, Putting Shot, Standing High Jump, Running Broad Jump, 220 yards Dash, Target Practice and Hop, Step and Jump were contested last fall, but it was decided by the committee to take them up again where the entries warranted it.

A fine day, a $5 prize offered by Prof. Howard for every New England Intercollegiate record broken, and suitable prizes for the victors and breakers of Middlebury records, aided in making this Field-day especially interesting and the competition close. Prof. Eaton and Prin. Janes of the High School acted as judges. The exercises opened at 2:45 with Sturtevant and Ross as contestants in the Standing Broad Jump. Ross was soon left behind by Sturtevant, who kept at it till he cleared 10 ft. 6½ in. at a single jump. This broke the Intercollegiate record of 10 ft. 5⅞ in., and won for Sturtevant the $5 prize. The mile run was passed over, there being no entries. Putting Shot was closely contested by Bryant, Donoway, Ross and Wynne, and was won by Bryant, who put it 29 ft. 9½ in. The Standing High and Running Broad Jump were both won by Sturtevant, who made the High Jump at 4 ft. 7 in. and the Broad at 18 ft. 11½ in., breaking the college record by ½ in. The 220 yards dash was not run, the fellows wishing to save their strength for the 100 yards, as there was no new prize for this run. The Hop, Step and Jump was won by Sturtevant, who went 41 ft. 10½ in., again breaking the Middlebury record. One of the best things of the day was the 100 yards dash, for which there were seven entries. It was won by Stickney, '94, who covered the space in 10 3-10 sec., showing him to be one of the best of amateur short-distance runners ; two tenths of a second quicker running would have beaten the Intercollegiate record. Donoway and Wynne deserve special mention, being close behind him, and making the distance in less than 11 seconds. Sturtevant easily beat at three jumps, covering 28 ft. 11 in. The One-half Mile Run was a close thing between Harrington and Megathlin, but was won by Megathlin in 2 min. 28 sec. Seven men tried their powers in throwing the base ball ; Stickney in his first throw sent it 353 ft. 1½ in. This broke the college record by nearly 37 ft., and establishes for the college a record exceeded by few. Taylor sent it 317½ ft., also breaking the college record. The three-legged race was made by Sargent and Stickney in 14¾ sec. In the pole vaulting Ross distanced his competitors, Sturtevant and Wynne, and cleared the pole at 8 ft. 1 in. Sturtevant again showed his superior jumping abilities by clearing the pole at 4 ft. 10 in. in a running high jump. The last thing on the programme for the day was the One-quarter Mile Run, for which three men appeared, Sturtevant, Megathlin and Sargent ; Sargent easily won it in 59 sec. After this a potato race was had by Ross, Wynne and Hayes, which created some amusement. It is still a question of doubt as to who beat.

These records show that on June 5 Middlebury broke five of her own records and surpassed all Intercollegiate contestants in standing broad jumping. This reflects much to the credit of Middlebury boys, and should be an incentive for still better work.

The view as one approaches Middlebury College is a pretty one; the grounds have been fixed so as to present an attractive appearance except near Starr Hall. There, old shoes, broken crockery and pieces of paper are scattered about in profusion. Let us be more careful concerning the appearance of the grounds about our dormitory.

The following members of the class of '90 have signified their intention of being present at Commencement: B. W. Sherman, Charles N. Pray and George M. Graves of Chicago, John Thomas of New Haven, L. H. Ross of Poultney, B. W. Norton of Weybridge, H. M. Goddard of Yale Theological School and H. E. Owen of Port Henry, N. Y.

For the past few weeks the Political Science class has been studying "Crime and its sources." To obtain a wider knowledge than that given by books, the class, under Prof. Howard, went to the Vergennes State Reform School for the purpose of viewing crime in its infancy. They anticipate a journey to the Rutland House of Correction to observe crime in its second stage.

"A movement is on foot to hold an intercollegiate regatta on Lake George next summer to be open to all colleges except Harvard and Yale." This is quoted from the Daily Crimson, and is something that ought to be brought before the students of our college. We might possibly equip a crew and be represented there, although we may have no hopes of performing much. Our presence will indicate, at least, that Middlebury is alive.

The treasurer of the Athletic Association is having considerable difficulty in collecting the dues of the association from certain members. As will be seen by the constitution, printed in another column, it costs only one dollar per annum to belong to the association. Now, if there is any student in college who feels that he is not able to pay that amount, we consider that it is his duty to have has name erased from the association books. But here the peculiar part of this matter comes in. We notice that those who can least afford it are the ones who are most prompt in paying up, and that those who can best afford it and who squander the most money, are the last ones to pay, when they pay at all. We fail to understand why this is so.

Personals.

[The editor of this department appreciates the fact that it is one of special interest to the alumni. But as they are widely scattered and many are unknown to him, he asks them to send to the Undergraduate from time to time whatever items they may come in possession of and and thus aid in making this department what the alumni desires it to be and what the editors endeavor to make it.]

'40. Hon. E. J. Phelps was one of the guests at a dinner given to ex-President Cleveland by Loyd Bryce, editor of the North American Review, at the latter's home recently.

'46. We clip the following from the Richford Gazette: "Mr. Stewart's experience in the lower House and his conceded high ability would make him a strong man in the Senate." The St. Johnsbury Caledonian speaks of him as follows: "Mr. Stewart's public record is worth noting at this time. He was representative eight years, Speaker of the House four years, member of the State Senate two years, Governor 1870–1872 and member of the 48th, 49th and 50th Congresses. His public record is a most creditable one, and we believe he will be a formidable candidate for Secretary Proctor to defeat. At any rate keep your eye on Stewart."

the city, was business manager of a publishing house. Failing health caused him to resign his position.

'65. The New York Herald recently contained a series of sketches of prominent members of the State Senate, and thus describes the Senator from St. Lawrence: "One of the most striking figures in the Senate is Uncle George Erwin of St. Lawrence. He is not handsome and has some other peculiarities, but he is good natured and popular with his colleagues. Erwin is a man of no mean ability. He is a dogged fighter, and whether voicing his real sentiments or not he always seems to be in dead earnest. He can talk most eloquently about the honest farmer and the down-trodden people of the country, but he prefers to pass most of his time in New York. Uncle George delights to get the Lieutenant-Governor's pulpit. He was Speaker of the Assembly in 1885, in which body he served six consecutive terms. He has had two terms in the Senate and hopes to have another. Uncle George was born in St. Lawrence county and lives at Potsdam. He is a lawyer, and while he is known as a Platt man he is for George Erwin every time.

Reviews.

The 'Varsity Crew is described in an article in the June number of the Atlantic Monthly, entitled, Rowing at Oxford. The writer, Mr. S. E. Winbolt, says: "With fours, torpids and eights the oarsman's career is completed so far as his particular college is concerned. If his ambition looks still higher, he must now try to represent the 'Varsity in the inter-'Varsity race at Putney. Paulo majora canamus. This contest is the means of adding two further grades of distinction to the three already mentioned. In October, while colleges are selecting fours, the university president and committee are carefully searching for eligible material among the last year's eightsmen. From these are finally chosen sixteen men to form two trial eights, who row over a longer course at Moulsford. The trial eightsman is further distinguished by a white cap with black oars crossed in front, and from such sixteen the vacant thwarts in the 'Varsity boat are filled up each year. But neither trial eightsman or "Blues," as such, are prohibited from rowing in their college eights in May."

One of the principal subjects of this number of the Century, and a timely one in view of the current commencements, is the education of women. There is an illustrated article entitled, "Women at an English University," in which Newnham College is described, with pictures of the college and portraits of Miss Clough and Miss Gladstone. The paper is by Eleanor Field, and one by Catherine Baldwin follows on the "Health of Women Students." In the Open Letters "Female Education in Germany" is discussed by Countess von Crockow.

Oberlin is talking of changing its field day to a Greek "Olympiad." The proposition is to dress the heralds in Greek costumes, call the events by Greek names, introduce the hurling of the javelin, an oration by the president, crowning the visitors with crowns of leaves, and the singing of college songs by the multitude. It is urged that such a course would not only arouse a greater interest in the sports from an athletic point of view, but would also act as a stimulus to the study of the Greek language and literature in the college.—Williams Weekly.

I DID NOT SUIT.

Down on my knees, I seize her hand,
That maiden peerless in the land,
"Oh fair one, let me press my suit."

With throbbing heart, I swear my love,

"If you kneel there and bag your knees
I think you'll have to press your suit."
